

Anti-slavery and human trafficking statement

Our commitment:

Prysmian is committed to ensuring that all of our workers are safeguarded, treated fairly and with dignity. We will not tolerate any form of exploitation and human trafficking whether this relates to our directly employed workforce or any of our supply chain.

Within Prysmian's sustainability commitment, ethical principles are extremely important. We believe that ethical business conduct is a driver for the success of our business. Prysmian's Code of Ethics requires the highest standards of ethical behaviour and compliance with applicable laws and regulations. In addition, Prysmian has adopted a Code of Business Conduct, which is a document embracing our responsible business practices by ensuring that ethical, economic, environmental and social standards are respected throughout Prysmian Group's value chain.

Our organisation:

Prysmian is the world leader in energy and telecom cable systems with a direct presence in more than 50 countries around the world, 107 plants, 27 R&D centres and over 33,000 employees. In the financial year ended 31 December 2024, Prysmian had sales in excess of 17 billion euros. To find out more about Prysmian, please visit <https://www.prysmian.com/en>.

In the UK, Prysmian is engaged in the manufacture and installation of energy (including submarine) and telecommunications cables and systems to service home and export markets.

Prysmian Cables & Systems

- Our trade and installers business manufactures low voltage products including both rigid and flexible cables for the distribution of power to and within residential, commercial and industrial buildings. Product development and innovation is focused on high-performance cables such as fire resistant and low smoke-zero halogen cables that satisfy specific safety requirements.
- Our power distribution business manufactures solutions mainly designed to support utilities and grid operators in power distribution and transmission, including medium-voltage cable systems for connecting industrial and/or residential buildings to the primary distribution grid, as well as low-voltage cable systems for power distribution.

- Our high voltage business designs, manufactures and installs high and extra-high voltage cable systems for the transmission of electricity from generating stations and within transmission and primary distribution grids. We also provide network monitoring and preventive maintenance, the repair and maintenance of cable connections and emergency services that include prompt action in the event of damage.
- Our cable accessories and network components businesses provide accessories and network components for jointing cables and connecting them to other devices, including connectors and terminals for low, medium, high and extra-high voltage cable and submarine cable systems.
- Our telecom solutions business develops and manufactures a wide range of cable systems and connectivity products used in telecommunication networks.

Draka Comteq

- Our MMS multimedia specials business supplies copper and fibre cables for short/medium runs in offices and data centres; optical and copper cable for various uses, such as cabling for radio and TV stations and film studios; fire-resistant coaxial cables and cables for connecting base stations and aerials in mobile networks.

Prysmian Powerlink Services

- Our submarine business provides installation services for submarine power cables for offshore windfarms and subsea power interconnectors utilising state of the art cable-laying vessels, including the Cable Enterprise, which is mainly used to install export cables for offshore windfarms, and the Ulisse, which carries out efficient installations in shallow waters, using an anchor handling mooring system.

In undertaking these activities Prysmian utilises its directly employed workforce as well as an extensive global supply chain.

Our policies:

Prysmian Code of Ethics

The Code of Ethics states that Prysmian is committed to the respect, safeguarding and promotion of the human rights of all people directly or indirectly involved in our operations and sets out details of what we do and what we expect from third parties.

What we do:

- As established in our D&I Manifesto, we secure the dignity of each individual and adopt an inclusive approach, supporting the uniqueness of each person and believe that diversity represents a source of enrichment and innovation.
- We develop and maintain a working environment where there is no room for any form of discrimination or harassment – both physical and verbal – by race, sex, skin color, nationality or social origin, ethnicity, language, religion, age, disability, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, adherence to association or labor unions, political opinion or any other state protected by applicable laws.
- As mentioned in our Human Rights Policy, we evaluate the impact on human rights, and we monitor our performance involving several parties within the process.
- We refuse and firmly hinder any form of violence against women which provokes or can provoke physical, sexual, or psychological damage, including violence threats, coercion, or arbitrary deprivation of personal freedom, both in public and private life. For further information, read our Global Anti-Harassment Policy.
- We promote equal opportunities in every level of our organization and ensure a fair remuneration for all our employees in compliance with applicable regulations, including the ones regarding minimum wage, working overtime and compulsory benefits.
- We recognize the value of collective bargaining as a crucial tool to determine contract terms for our employees and the regulation of relations with trade unions.
- We reserve the right to assess relevant third parties respect our standards and obligations in relation to human rights and corporate sustainability.

What we expect:

- We require all our third parties, especially the ones who are part of our supply chain, to
 - adhere to our commitment regarding fundamental human rights, as well as the fight against any form of discrimination, harassment, or abuse;
 - repudiate and strive to fight any form of slavery, traffic of human beings, forced and child labor;
 - not adopt any form of abuse, threats, intimidation, bullying, or any behavior that could jeopardize, even potentially, a person's dignity or well being;
 - adhere to the principle of social and economic equality.

All those working for or on behalf of Prysmian must comply with the Code of Ethics, including our supply chain. Violation of the Code of Ethics and/or the applicable Company policies or procedures' provisions could be subject to legal actions and/or disciplinary measures, up to: (i) the termination of the employment relation, (ii) the termination of the contract or (iii) the interruption of the business relation.

Prysmian Group Human Rights Policy

The Prysmian Group Human Rights Policy states Prysmian's commitment to ensuring voluntary employment for all its employees and eliminating any form of forced, bonded and compulsory labour, following the ILO Convention No. 29 and 105. Banned forced labour also includes human trafficking, threatening workers with severe deprivations, such as withholding passports or other ID documents, food or land or wages, physical violence or sexual abuse, or bonding workers through debts.

UK Anti-Slavery Policy

In 2016 Prysmian UK introduced a specific Anti-Slavery Policy which sets out our approach to preventing exploitation and human trafficking within our workforce and that of our supply chain. The policy covers the following key areas.

1. Recruitment – the policy sets out the due diligence processes which we follow in relation to recruitment to ensure we minimise the risk of slavery and human trafficking within our directly employed workforce.
2. Supply Chain – the policy sets out the due diligence processes which we follow in relation to the engagement of new suppliers as well as subsequent reviews and audits to ensure we minimise the risk of slavery and human trafficking within our supply chain. We require our direct suppliers to undertake steps to ensure this risk is minimised for organisations indirectly supplying to us as part of our direct suppliers' own supply chain.
3. Training – the policy sets out our commitment to providing appropriate training to those members of our staff who are involved in managing recruitment and our supply chains.
4. Reporting – the policy encourages our employees to notify any concerns and sets out the various options available, including details of our Group Whistleblowing Policy which enables individuals to report concerns confidentially and anonymously.

Due diligence

As part of our efforts to monitor and reduce the risk of slavery and human trafficking occurring within our supply chains, we have adopted due diligence procedures in relation to both recruitment and our supply chain. Due diligence in relation to our supply chain is undertaken both at the point of engaging a new supplier and periodically throughout the duration of the relationship in the form of reviews and audits.

Our procedures are designed to:

- establish and assess areas of potential risk in our business and supply chains
- monitor potential risk areas in our business and supply chains
- reduce the risk of slavery and human trafficking occurring in our business and supply chains
- provide adequate protection for whistleblowers

In addition, our standard terms and conditions of purchase include specific obligations on our supply chain in relation to modern slavery. This provides a specific contractual mechanism to facilitate the monitoring and assessment of compliance by our supply chain with the Modern Slavery Act 2015.

Risk and compliance

Prysmian evaluates the nature and extent of its exposure to the risk of modern slavery occurring in its supply chain. Due to the global nature of our supply chain, we consider that there are some aspects of our business which are exposed to a potentially high risk, for example suppliers located in geographical regions where public indices would suggest the prevalence of modern slavery is high.

As outlined above, irrespective of geographical location, we undertake due diligence on all of our supply chain and require all our suppliers to adhere to our Code of Ethics. We enforce a strict code of compliance and will not tolerate slavery and human trafficking within our supply chains.

Effectiveness and KPIs

As reported in our statement in respect of the financial year ended 31 December 2022, Prysmian UK has previously requested that all of its suppliers complete a Modern Slavery questionnaire. The purpose of the questionnaire was to get feedback on their approach to modern slavery issues and to help to identify potential areas for improvement and actions in future years.

We received more than 430 responses to the questionnaire and a summary of some of the key results can be found in our statement in respect of the financial year ended 31 December 2022.

During 2025 we intend to repeat the questionnaire to assess the change in approach to modern slavery issues within our supply chain over the then three year period and to help to identify potential areas for improvement and actions for future years

Prysmian UK has not received any notifications of concerns related to modern slavery during the financial year ended 31 December 2024.

Training:

Prysmian Group's Compliance team organize regular training to our staff on all compliance related topics, including our Code of Ethics and Human Rights Policy. During 2024, our Global Compliance team delivered about 10,000 hours of training sessions on a variety of compliance topics. In addition, specific training is provided to key functions within the UK on the UK Anti Slavery Policy, including training on how to recognise the risks of modern slavery and human trafficking in our business and supply chains.

Through all of our training programmes, employees are encouraged to identify and report any potential breaches of any of our compliance policies.

Further actions:

Following a review of our actions in the financial year to 31 December 2024 to prevent slavery or human trafficking from occurring in our business or supply chains, throughout 2025 we intend to continue with our programme of supplier audits. In addition, Prysmian Group's Compliance team will continue to organize regular training to our staff on all compliance related topics.
